GPS + GLONASS = complementary global positioning system

GPS shortcomings

- the signal is unstable at high latitudes
- political risks (United States can distort or shut down the signal indefinitely for certain areas)

GLONASS-M
In the GPS+GLONASS system, positioning precision can be increased to several centimeters (compared to between 1 and 3 meters for GPS alone)

Benefits of using signals from both systems at the same time

The number of satellites usually available for use

Improved precision of GPS+GLONASS against that of GPS alone, in %

! The end user will benefit from the integration of these two systems which were initially created as competitors
